NEW DECOMPRESSION TABLE RELIEVES PAIN

Darren Strong from Strong Chiropractic, announces a new, sophisticated computerized decompression table that allows the spine to be gently stretched and relaxed for spinal decompression therapy.

The pattern of alternating pulling and relaxing creates vacuum-like pressure which allows disc material that was herniated or protruded to be pulled back in the disc over time.

Patients will notice a reduction of their pain during these treatment sessions. Stop in today and ask about the new table and how you can benefit.

SYDNEY-VICTORIA ELECTION RESULTS

Liberal incumbent Jaime Battiste, was successful in retaining his seat in the Sydney-Victoria riding

Battiste garnered 13,770 votes, making up 39 per cent of the vote, while PC candidate Eddie Orrell came a close second with 12,646 votes and 36 per cent of the total votes

NDP's Jeff Ward received 6,962 votes, while Robert Barron of the People's Party of Canada came in with 1,173 votes, Green Party candidate Mark Embrett 431 votes and Nikki Boisvert of the Marxist-Leninist Party a distant fifth place with 126 votes.

Elsewhere on the Island, Mike Kelloway retained his seat in the Cape Breton-Canso riding.

In an Inverness oran newspaper report, Kelloway stated "I'm ready to work hard," Kelloway said last night, moments after being declared winner in the federal election, narrowly besting Conservative candidate Alfie MacLeod by 1,619 votes or three percent of the 41,857 cast in the riding.

"I don't have all the answers, but what I do have is the focus – and I think the campaign has demonstrated that – hopefully my work ethic (and) the ability to listen, to bring people together, to look at key priorities for the riding," Kelloway said.

With 213 of 214 polls reporting, Kelloway carried the night with 17,348 votes, though early votes had Conservative competitor Fiona MacLeod trailing at one point by about 600 votes. Toward the end of the night, the gap between the two widened further, with MacLeod earning 13,133 votes.

Jana Reddick, representing the NDP, placed third with 5,395 votes, while People's Party of Canada candidate Brad Grandy finished fourth with 1,589 votes.

NEW CELTIC CD RELEASED

A new CD entitled "Cape Breton, My Home By The Sea" has just been released by singer/songwriter Ronnie MacEwan.

A preview of the CD will be featured on K-LEE RADIO on Sunday, September 26 - 8 pm, and an encore presentation on Wednesday, September 29 - at 8:00 pm.

Ronnie was born in Dundee, Scotland but joined Sandy MacIntyre's Band "Steeped In Tradition" in Toronto and toured the pub circuit for many years and fell in love with Cape Breton and its musical ambassadors John Allan Cameron, The Rankin Family, J P Cormier and Bruce Guthro.

Ronnie continued his songwriting during the pandemic and finally found some time to consolidate the music and record the album.

The CD features songs with a Cape Breton influence with "Cape Breton My Home By The Sea" which Ron wanted to craft as an anthem song and it is based on the pride that we Cape Bretoners have for our island.

Another Cape Breton Connection is "Angela's Eyes", although Ronnie never met John Allan, he was fortunate enough through Sandy and Lucy MacIntyre to meet his lovely wife Angela, a wonderful woman and he thought of an idea for a song relating John Allan's wonderful disposition and jest for life to his lovely wife and partner.

Ronnie pays tribute to Rankin Family member with his song

"When John Morris Rankin Came To Town".

"The Girl From Maragree Forks" is another fun uptempo song based on two couples and their similar paths in life - Sandy & Lucy MacIntyre and Ed & Gloria Matthews.

Rounding out the CD are "Darling Mary", The Westray Mine Song", Run Boys Run and the closing song, "Take Me Home."

I thoroughly liked this CD and I would recommend it to our readers.

Tune in to K-LEE RADIO on Sunday, September 26 at 8:00 pm and Wednesday September 29, 8:00 pm for a preview.

THE WAIT

I've made doctor's office wait wait for, job interview. Where time seems to stand frozen no obvious movement in view.

Experienced ever present line wait where time is of an essence wall clock in constant motion makes one edgy and unpleasant. Why does it take so long

I haven't time to spare please allow line movement so I may Adieu from here. If one could put his time to use every minute waiting he would have saved enough to be eligible for his pension .

Brownie Got Me!

They say that confession is good for the soul and if that is true then I guess I'm in for a good day. This story dates back to my youth growing up in the Ashby district of Sydney. Like many of the boys in our area, we started at daybreak and tried to fit in as many activities that we could before the sun set.

This particular story is about a British Bull dog named Brownie. He was always kept in his backyard and he barked at anybody who walked too near the fence. I admit that we would sometimes provoke him by rattling a stick on the pickets knowing that we were protected by the fence.

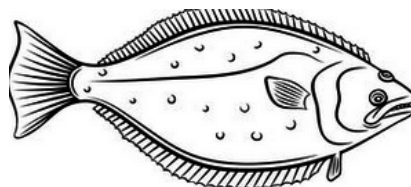

A lot of times the boys would engage in physical activities that would be very hard on their clothes. We would "catch Ole Hell" if we ripped our shirts or pants. Playing baseball, climbing trees, playing chicken fights and Red Rover were particularly hard on the pants. Whenever we happened to rip our clothes, we would dread the inevitable dressing down from our Mothers.

One enterprising lad who shall remain nameless (Pat Briand), came up with an ingenious excuse for whenever such accidents happened to him. "I just tell my mother that Brownie got me when I got too near the fence."

Like manna from heaven, this simple excuse could save us a lot of heartbreak at home. So that Summer, 1960, the rash of false claims against Brownie escalated until parents held their own informal meeting and decided to contact the "cops". From that meeting, suggestions ranged from "putting the dog down" to having him wear a muzzle. The parents settled for having him chained in the backyard.

We all felt really bad for Brownie and the "bum rap" he was getting. So at least twice a week we went down to the grocery store and begged "dog scraps" and a nice bone and we would toss this over the fence to Brownie to help ease our conscience. The parents were relieved for they assumed their plan worked as there were no further Brownie incidents after that.

So, Brownie, if you are in Doggie Heaven, please accept our belated condolences for your alleged bad behavior. I hope the soup bones helped a little to make up for the bad reputation.

The mighty Maiden has returned! It's been 6 years since we heard new material from Bruce Dickinson and the boys so this is a real treat-and it's a double album to boot, with amazing artwork inside. I heard the buzz about this release a while ago but it was seeing the wicked music video for "The Writing On The Wall" a few months ago that made me crazy to get my hands on this album. This is a long album, with a running time of 81 minutes and 53 seconds for only 10 songs. Yes, they are epic in length but this band is known for great musical epics. The title track, "Senjutsu" starts things off and the song is really good, but for me the best song on disc 1 is "The Writing On The Wall", with it's southern rock style as Bruce takes us on a new Maiden journey. As for the other songs, "The Time Machine" offers a slow build up to what becomes sheer metal ecstasy, "Days Of Future Past" finds the band walking a newer path for what can best be described as a nod to Judas Priest and "Lost In A Lost World" once again builds on the Maiden formula of epic intro-followed by a searing metal assault. "Stratego" has a fantastic driving drum beat pushing Bruce's vocal onslaught on this killer track. The second disc features great numbers as well; "Death Of The Celts" does indeed have a Celtic feel at times and "The Parchment" entices the listener to take a Homeric musical journey with the band, which can also be said about the song "Darkest Hour". The album closes with the atmospheric "Hell On Earth"-and as it began so shall it end-a heavy metal crusade of power and glory. Here's a true fact for ya; Iron Maiden rented out Centre200 many moons ago to rehearse for their "Seventh Son" album tour. I got into the venue to see the huge iceberg stage; I didn't meet the band but spoke to the tour manager about why the band didn't do a concert here; he said that it wouldn't look good to concert promoters if the band opened a tour playing in front of only 5000 people (this was pre-internet days) so they spent the week here rehearsing. Lucky for us the mighty Iron Maiden has returned-and I thank the God's.

Look Before You Leap

This good piece of advice was often uttered to me and my brother through the years and we tried to heed it whenever possible.

But his next incident occurred at Gillis Lake one bright Summer evening. My father liked to fish trout and we had a 12 foot aluminum boat that he usually took out each night.

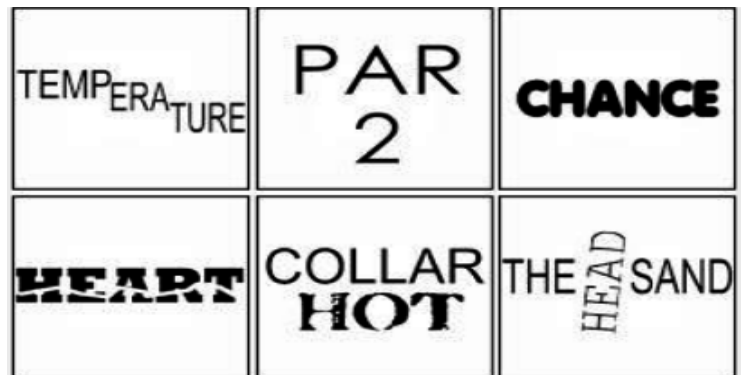

I went down at nightfall each evening to give him a hand to drag the boat onto shore to tie it to a tree. He had caught a few trout and was rowing back in to shore to tie up the boat. He started to pick up his fish and some gear and started to untangle a knot he had in his fishing line.

He always brought the boat in backwards to make it easier to tie up to the tree. On this night, there was a slight breeze and when the boat grounded, it started to drift out from shore.

My father finally got the knot out and stepped out the side of the boat assuming he was still near the shore. Down he went into six feet of water sputtering and splashing and cursing like a sailor. He dropped the tackle box in the water and lost a lot of lures and hooks. I thought of the "Look before you leap" phrase but was wise enough not to say it.

On the plus side I learned quite a few new curse words
