NEW DECOMPRESSION TABLE RELIEVES PAIN

Darren Strong from Strong Chiropractic, announces a new, sophisticated computerized decompression table that allows the spine to be gently stretched and relaxed for spinal decompression therapy.

The pattern of alternating pulling and relaxing creates vacuum-like pressure which allows disc material that was herniated or protruded to be pulled back in the disc over time.

Patients will notice a reduction of their pain during these treatment sessions. Stop in today and ask about the new table and how you can benefit.

Veterans Banner Project Unveiled

This new project we, the North Sydney Historical Society have unveiled on Archibald Avenue in North Sydney. We have had banners made to honour our veterans past and present.

This is a common project in many cities and towns throughout Canada. We are very proud of this initiative and were recognized for our efforts in the Nova Scotia Legislature. We are also very happy to have had sponsorship from the North Sydney Legion and North Sydney Fire Department.

This inaugural year we had 15 banners produced and the response from the public has been overwhelmingly positive said Joe Meaney chairman of the Historical Society.

Our Treasurer Harry Taylor and our building manager Robert Hillman have been the go to people on this project and we couldn't be prouder says Meaney. We owe it all to our veterans and this is a special tribute. We hope to do more every year.

New Urgent Treatment Centre Opens

It was a busy day Monday for those at the new urgent treatment centre at the Northside Hospital in North Sydney, N.S. The centre opened its doors to the public for the first time Monday morning.

"The phone lines were busy this morning, but people who needed to get booked, got booked," said Dr. Stephanie Langley, one of the family doctor's in the area who is helping staff the new urgent treatment centre.

The new centre was created by the Nova Scotia government as a hybrid between an emergency room and a family doctor's office. Appointments at the urgent treatment centre were full on the first day, with about 20 patients being seen.

"There was a gentleman who fell earlier and had a shoulder injury," Langley said. "Another person had an abscess that needed incision and drainage. So, very appropriate visits to the urgent treatment centre." Gordon MacDonald is an area councillor who has been a vocal health-care advocate in his community.

He says if the province intends to have the same health-care model replicated everywhere in Nova Scotia, he's happy the North Sydney area was first to try it out.

"There's been a little bit of a buzz going on," MacDonald said. "(But I) hope peoples' expectations are not too big, so they think it's an emergency room, because it's not going to be used for that purpose. But I think for a quick assistance and what we have happening at the Regional Hospital, I think this is going to benefit us."

MacDonald says he's concerned there could be a few problems at first when it comes to meeting patient demand.

"I hope it's not going to be a replacement for doctor recruitment," MacDonald said. "People still need their family doctors and I believe the people that are using this urgent care treatment centre will tell you the same thing."

Langley says there is excitement among staff to be the first to try the new model. She adds the plan is to take more patients per day, once staff become accustomed to the new routine.

Even though I drifted away from the music of William Broad over the years I always knew how great an artist he is-of course most people know him as Billy Idol. Billy rose through the ranks of the punk scene in the late 1970's as the lead singer of the band Generation X and then had huge critical and commercial success in the 1980's. He moved away from the limelight in the 1990's a bit-only releasing 4 albums between 1990 and 2005, but did do some acting and made guest appearances though. FYI-did you know that director James Cameron originally had Billy in mind to play the T-1000 robot in "Terminator 2-Judgment day" but a serious motorcycle accident in February of 1990 put Billy out of the picture-literally. So Billy's back with this 4 song EP "The Roadside". The EP starts off with the rock hard driving force called, of all things, "Rita Hayworth"-but a sample of the lyrics says it all; "We're all actors I play you, you play me In this scene of wannabes and abusers 'Cause when the black hits There's no available light left You can't offset the dark with illusions You do rails of blow at the House Soho And say, "Man, this place is so full of losers" And when you wait at the valet and try to escape You get a, "Come on, "from some nothin' producer". Methinks Mr. Idol is slamming the Hollywood cult of personality machine. "Bitter Taste" is an atmospheric number as Billy's voice goes from low to high on verse and chorus-the song reminds me of something the U.K. Band The Mission, The Doors or Chris Isaac might do. It references Billy's serious motorcycle accident mentioned above. I like this tune a lot. "U Don't Have To Kiss Me Like That" is a throbbing slab of bebop rock that is definitely classic Billy Idol. The EP closes off with "Baby Put Your Clothes Back On"-another song that has a smokey, cool cat groove that seems to be made for Billy's vocal delivery, and also sounds like something Chris Isaac might do. It's not a slam on someone's looks-it has more of a gentlemanly theme. With this being the newest material we've heard from Billy since 2014 it's a great return to the limelight.

THE ALIENS HAVE LANDED!

Bobby Dawe and Freddy Mullins are as typical Cape Bretoners as anybody blessed to be born on the Island. They had a dream in life, as we all do, to make the "big score" and then be able to sit around and enjoy life by drinking beer, telling lies and having their friends be envious of them.

It's not that they were a lazy pair, or no, it was just the exact opposite. Bobby and Freddy had tried just about every possible get rich scheme and failed in each and every one of them. But defeat was not in their vocabulary. They generated a lot of interest because you never knew what they would be planning next.

Freddy and Bobby were the forerunner of Red Green, with coat hanger wire, duct tape and ingenuity they could build any conceivable machine or object. One day Freddy had the idea that they would go into the nightcrawler business in a big time way. He and Bobby decided to rig up a system with a light on their head and a reflector to beam the light down to the ground. The secret of their success would be that they would work as a team and strap large 1 gallon juice cans on each leg with duct tape and never have to stop to empty until they had a full can.

Nightcrawlers were going for 50 cents a dozen at the time, so it looked like a good idea. On the first night that it rained, Bobby and Freddy decked themselves out with their cans strapped on each leg and the flashlight and reflector on their heads.

Things started out really well and soon their cans were half full. Having depleted their supply from the St. Theresa's Church lawn, they decided to move to new ground. This was the beginning of the end for our intrepid entrepreneurs.

As they began to search for new ground, they decided to go into "Widow MacRae's" yard, which she kept well manicured and planted with vegetables and flowers. Unfortunately, they neglected to tell the widow MacRae.

Bent over and engrossed in their work, the dynamic duo were startled when a voice called out from behind them. "This is the police, put your hands up!"

Apparently "Widow MacRae" had made a frantic call to police to report that "aliens have landed in my back yard. I can see their heads and legs all shining and lit up". The police soon had things cleared up but the duo had to make an appearance before Judge MacAdam and he fined them $25.00 for "trespassing at night."

The ironic part of the whole story was that they were able to sell the worms for $30.00, so the net profit was $5.00. They never went back into the crawler business and there were no more reports of aliens in the neighborhood.
