Darren Strong from Strong Chiropractic, announces
a new, sophisticated computerized decompression table that allows the spine to be gently stretched and relaxed for spinal decompression therapy.

The pattern of alternating pulling and relaxing creates vacuum-like pressure which allows disc material that was herniated or protruded to be pulled back in the disc over time.

Patients will notice a reduction of their pain during these treatment sessions. Stop in today and ask about the new table and how you can benefit.

TOO MANY COOKS

There's an old saying that "too many cooks spoil the broth." I guess those old sayings come from practical experience. I remember one year when we all lived at home. Christmas was "just around the corner" as the saying goes. We had a family of 8 and we were all ready to celebrate our Christmas in our own way.

We always had a little family get together about a week before Christmas as we were all busy on Christmas day and Boxing day with our own families. One of the highlights was our "Christmas Buffet". Everyone would bring a munchie type food and a baked item. With eight people and our mother, we had a varied supply of dishes. Chili, chicken wings, honey garlic ribs, stuffed chicken breasts, rabbit pie and pizza were always on the menu.

We also had the punch pot down in the basement on its own table. Dad would make his favorite fruit punch and he would then "flavor" it with some fancy liquor he would buy at the liquor store. There were five boys in the family and three girls. The boys would also sneak some of their own favorite brew in the pot (actually it was a huge stainless steel lobster pot) to "flavor" it as well.

The boys were all downstairs watching the hockey game and cheering on the Leafs while two of the brothers were rooting for the Canadiens. We sent a punch bowl filled with the brew upstairs for the girls to drink. After the second period ended and many rounds of punch were drunk, dad got up to go to the bathroom and fell "arse over tea kettle" as he got up from the couch. All the boys thought this was hilarious and when Dougie went to get up, he too took a header. This prompted another round of laughter.

By now, nobody was feeling any pain and the boys nearly wet themselves when they saw Dad actually crawling up the basement steps to get upstairs. To put it mildly, he was "pie eyed." The girls were in rare form as well. Mom was telling dirty jokes, a rare thing for her to do, and the girls all had tears running down their faces.

When the time came to go home, everybody realized that they would need to call taxies to get home. It was like a convention as a parade of eight taxies lined up outside our door. The next day we all understood what had happened and solved the mystery. After Dad talked to the boys, they all admitted to "flavoring" the punch with a 26 ounce each, unaware that each of the five boys had done this. The brew must have been pretty near 100% alcohol. No wonder everybody was bombed.

Everybody made it home safely and they still talk about the "Great Christmas Party" with a twinkle in their eyes.

I wanted to get to this album sooner as it was released at the end of October (an appropriate date-based on their name) but there have been so many new releases lately that one would have to burn the candle at both ends just to keep up on them, especially ones worth listening to; Quote The Raven's "Can't Hold The Light" is one such CD. For those who don't know, QTR are a duo comprised of Jordan Coaker and Kirsten Rodden-Clarke who are building a reputation for their wonderful harmonies, atmospheric, and sometimes haunting sound-combined with great songwriting skills. About the album the duo said; "Can't Hold the Light has been a giant undertaking for us, since Golden Hour we traveled basically all over Canada and even down in Nashville writing these songs about life on the road, falling in and out of love, and holding on to happiness in the darkest of times. We've worked with our ever growing team day in and day out to give you a little piece of ourselves, even when there were days we could have given it all up. but there's magic in music and everyone who worked on this record knew we were creating something special." Interestingly enough-this, their third album actually opens up with the more uptempo song "Hope"-and it highlights just what QTR do so well. The blend of folk, alt-country and light rock finds a perfect home on this number, and the song "Through The Night" is a full-on rocker that allows both Kirsten and Jordan to amp it up and throw caution to the wind. Without describing every song here it's important to mention something like "Home Is Worth The Blues", a song that rivals a lot of what we hear on today's pop/hit radio. This number reminds me of something City and Colour/Dallas Green would do. The song makes us all aware of the fact that home is what justifies the daily grind of the average Joe & Jane, getting to the end of that day and finding that oasis of comfort and love. The album's namesake song, "Can't Hold The Light" is beautiful and "Love You The Best" really offers Kirsten the perfect musical avenue for her subtle and touching voice. In a nutshell, this CD is a perfect listening experience.
