SENIORS FALL TEA

Want to ease yourself into Winter? Why not attend our Fall Tea, the first one of the new season? Come, bring a friend and reunite with some old friends.

Have an afternoon to yourself, enjoy some sandwiches, sweets and all the hot tea your belly can hold.

Listen to some soft musics and perhaps win yourself a prize. The tea is Wednesday Oct.18th, at the North Sydney Pensioners Club from 2-4. Tickets are $10 and can be obtained from the ladies posted on the Seniors Facebook page.

There will be a few available at the door. Hope to see you there!

NEW DECOMPRESSION TABLE RELIEVES PAIN

Darren Strong from Strong Chiropractic, announces a new, sophisticated computerized decompression table that allows the spine to be gently stretched and relaxed for spinal decompression therapy.

The pattern of alternating pulling and relaxing creates vacuum-like pressure which allows disc material that was herniated or protruded to be pulled back in the disc over time.

Patients will notice a reduction of their pain during these treatment sessions. Stop in today and ask about the new table and how you can benefit.

PAUL POWER

Keeping with this month's theme of Halloween and all things evil, this is one of the most controversial documentaries I have ever seen; "Hail Satan?". It's how The Satanic Temple "TST" (formed in 2013 by Lucien Greaves and Malcolm Jarry) used the state of Arkansas's own laws on the separation of church and state against it to erect a statue of Baphomet (the satanic goat purportedly worshiped by the Knights' Templar and TST) right alongside the existing monument of The Ten Commandments. According to their press releases The Satanic Temple uses Satanic imagery to promote equality, social justice, and the separation of church and state. Their stated mission is "to encourage benevolence and empathy among all people". There's a great sequence in the doc detailing the Satanic Panic from the 1970's to the 1990's, touching on everything from Oprah, to heavy metal music, to Dungeons and Dragons, and phony allegations of daycare centre abuses. TST used satire, theatrical plays, humor and direct legal action in their campaigns to "generate attention and prompt people to reevaluate fears and perceptions", and to "highlight religious hypocrisy and encroachment on religious freedom". All of this plays out here as the Temple shone a light on how Christian values are creeping back into society's political system on every level. Ironically, the whole idea of erecting Ten Commandments statues around the U.S. started in 1956, as a movie tie-in for Charlton Heston's "The Ten Commandments". The filmmaker, Penny Lane, chose eloquent and intelligent people from TST for the interviews, which quickly gets juxtaposed with the fervent, eternal damnation venting of the born-again Christians in the film. As the documentary plays out TST takes the step of banning a member when she endorsed violence and overt illegal actions-things that TST stands against. Again, this documentary is controversial, and to some it's thought-provoking, to others pure evil. Which one is it? That is up to you.

HALLOWEEN MEMORIES

I guess one thing about getting old is the many memories you build up over the years. Halloween was a really big event for our family and we started out just after Thanksgiving thinking about what costumes we would wear, mapping out the houses we would hit first for the best treats and building up a stack of firecrackers or "double wickers" as we called them.

Back then every boy had a stash of these firecrackers and we'd blow up tin cans, pumpkins and sometimes the mailboxes of the "cranks" who refused to give out treats.

In many of the neighbourhoods, there were groups of parents who were "on patrol" in the neighbourhood to prevent the boys from doing any damage. They would set up church halls with small treats and we "bobbed" for apples and played other mild games after we finished loading up on candy treats.

One Halloween we got creative and ran a clothesline between two apartment buildings and hung old bedsheets as ghosts. We took the bedsheets down but forgot to take the clothesline down and Murdock Penny nearly hung himself on it coming home from the 4 - 12 back shift at the Steel Plant.

Another time honored tradition was pulling the fire alarms on the poles and watch the fire engines roll out. They had young teenagers watch the fire alarms until 1:00 am and they got paid $5.00 for the night and that was a lot of money back in 1960.

There were instances of houses being pelted with eggs and windows being soaped and tires being set on fire but in our part of town, we were generally too busy running around loading up on candy to do much mischief.

One year my father put a scarecrow on the front porch with a big sombrero hat and all the kids that passed by would stop and look at the scarecrow. On Halloween night, my father then put on the scarecrow costume and sat on the porch awaiting unsuspecting trick or treaters and then jump up and scream. This was funny for a while until some parents called the cops after complaints from parents who had traumatized children crying in their homes.

Another memory I had from the early days of Cape Breton Halloween was when I was 10 years old and really in to Halloween and all the candy, bars and treats. My mother would let me have an old pillow case and as soon as it was dark, off we'd go running so we could get as many houses as we could before all the treats were gone. I had a really good stash and my mother made sure I saved the bulk of it as I put it at the end of my bed and went to sleep dreaming of all the candy I had collected.

When I woke up, the bag was gone. At first I thought my mother moved it but she said she didn't touch it. I then thought my brother took my treats but he was still asleep with his own bag of goodies at his feet.

I started to panic and ran around our house looking for the candy. I finally found it behind the couch where my dog had dragged it and ate and licked all the candy I had collected. I couldn't believe it but my brother was good enough to share some of his stash with me that year.

I hope that the kids of today make their own Halloween memories and play safe this Halloween.
